LANGSTON'S DEFENSE.

Evidence to Prove That He Was Assaulted Before He Fired.

He Defended Himself When Struck, Pushed, and Threatened.

Attempt to Show That a Government Witness Wanted to be Bought Off.

Attacking the Character for Peace of the Two Men Shot.

Decorations day might have carried thousands out of the city, but it did not reduce the size of the audience in the criminal court, and when Justice MacArthur came upon the bench yesterday morning the chamber was uncomfortably crowded, and remained so throughout the day. The trial of Frank Langston, indicted for the murder of James Spencer, was resumed, the defense calling as their first witness Charles P. Reed, who had known Langston for ten years. He testified that he had made an engagement with Langston to go with him that night to attend the Bethel Literary meeting. He had heard Langston speak of in the highest terms. He came to the house of the witness and told him about the trouble, and he went to see what harm had been done. He found one man killed and another mortally wounded. Next he saw Langston at the restaurant of the witness's uncle, and after that at the corner of Twelfth street and New York avenue. The witness left him at Tenth street and New York avenue and went to Lincoln hall for Mrs. Langston, and then to meet him with her at Twelfth street. The meeting was about 9 o'clock. He next saw Langston about 12:20 o'clock at his friend's house, on New York avenue. They left there a little after 2 o'clock in the morning, went down Twelfth street to Pennsylvania avenue.

Here they took a cab and went to Capitol hill to the house of Mr. Watson, where they remained until 11 o'clock the next day. Langston at first did not know whether to go to the house or not, but his mother advised him to do so.

On cross-examination the witness said that he did not know the officers were hunting for Langston. They came out openly from the house and went about the city. He thought they might be looking for Langston, and they went out there to get out of the way.

On redirect examination the witness said that when Langston told him to go out and see if he could find the man who had shot him, he did not go. He did not know the man who had shot him, and he did not know the man who had shot him.

On recross-examination the witness said that he left the town in company with Langston, crossed Benning's bridge, stopped at Marlboro', and there he took the cab and went off. There was a lady went with them named Eva Adams, but she came back to the city with the witness.

William Brown, a laborer, testified that he was standing at the door of the house where the shooting occurred, and that he saw Langston and the man who had shot him. He saw Langston and the man who had shot him. He saw Langston and the man who had shot him.

The witness on cross-examination said he did not see the two women who came out of the house with Langston. He did not see the two women who came out of the house with Langston. He did not see the two women who came out of the house with Langston.

Mary Dyson resides at No. 2309 Seventh street, and was standing at her door talking to Langston at the time the shooting was going on. She saw the coming together of Wilkins and Anderson. Langston interfered to part them. A woman rushed up and told Langston to let them alone, and she slipped him in the face. Langston then came up and said, "Don't you hit that woman." Langston raised up and backed away. Williams was right close to him when Langston pulled the pistol and fired, "bang, bang, bang," just as the witness said. Then he turned and ran away.

Mrs. Ann Johnson, who at the time lived at No. 2325 Seventh street, testified to seeing the trouble between Wilkins and Anderson, and that she saw Langston and the man who had shot him. She saw Langston and the man who had shot him. She saw Langston and the man who had shot him.

Carter Holmes testified that he remembered the shooting, and that he saw the man who had shot Langston. He saw the man who had shot Langston. He saw the man who had shot Langston.

Reed testified that he saw the man who had shot Langston. He saw the man who had shot Langston. He saw the man who had shot Langston.

Langston testified that he saw the man who had shot him. He saw the man who had shot him. He saw the man who had shot him.

Langston testified that he saw the man who had shot him. He saw the man who had shot him. He saw the man who had shot him.

Langston testified that he saw the man who had shot him. He saw the man who had shot him. He saw the man who had shot him.

again told the man he wanted nothing to do with him. The man still pressed him, and the firing began. Williams said, "I am shot, and shot for nothing." Spencer was looking on at the fight and doing nothing. His hands were down at his sides. He said, "I am shot, and shot for nothing." Spencer was looking on at the fight and doing nothing.

The witness on cross-examination said there were three cars at the turntable, and one had just gone away. It was after the men had parted the first time that Langston told Anderson he had better go in the house, and Anderson refused to go. The men then came across the street from a direction opposite to that the woman came, and struck him twice in the back, once with each hand. Langston then rushed her away and told her to go off. Williams then came across the street from a direction opposite to that the woman came, and struck him twice in the back, once with each hand.

The witness did not say anything about the affair because he did not want his mother to know that he knew anything of it. He thought she would be angry with him. He thought she would be angry with him. He thought she would be angry with him.

John H. Harris testified to recollecting the shooting, and before it occurred he met Williams in a bar room and they drank together. Williams drank whiskey twice and said to him, "I am shot, and shot for nothing." Williams then came across the street from a direction opposite to that the woman came, and struck him twice in the back, once with each hand.

On cross-examination the witness said he visited Sheboy's place ten or fifteen times that day for drinks or tobacco. He never saw the man who had shot him. He never saw the man who had shot him. He never saw the man who had shot him.

Oscar Brown, shoe-maker, testified that he saw Dennis Williams and John H. Harris in Sheboy's place, but did not see Carter Reed. He did not see Carter Reed. He did not see Carter Reed.

Isaac F. Norman, colored, an employee of the treasury department, testified that he saw Dennis Williams the second or third day after he was shot at his home. Williams, in telling of the affair, said that he was coming up Seventh street, and saw two men fighting. Just then a young man came up and attempted to part them and Williams said that he told the man not to interfere, and the man was killed.

Howard Gordon testified that three or four days after the shooting he met Dennis Williams who told him that he got into the trouble by trying to part the men, and that he told him to let them alone. Williams said, "What you got to do with it," and went toward Langston when he pulled the pistol and fired.

Arvidson Turner testified that after the court adjourned last Monday Williams, Mrs. Spencer, and another lady were walking down the street together. The witness said he heard Williams say, "He asked me how my wounds felt now and whether they hurt me and I told him they did not hurt me much, then he asked me if Mr. Langston had been to see me or offered any money. I said it was not necessary to offer me money. I was going to tell the truth and hang Frank Langston if I could."

Capt. O. S. B. Wall testified that the defendant was his nephew. The witness had an interview with Williams about three weeks after the latter had been before the grand jury, in which he wanted the witness to do something for him. The witness said that he (Williams) had been before the grand jury and made his statement. Williams said that it did not make any difference, he could tell an entirely different story in court.

On cross-examination the witness said that he did not see the man who had shot Langston. He did not see the man who had shot Langston. He did not see the man who had shot Langston.

Charles Alexander testified to seeing Langston before the shooting, and he was sober. Daniel Johnson corroborated the testimony of John Johnson, testified that he knew Spencer for ten years and saw him at 3 o'clock on the day he was killed at the back gate of the witness with two others, cursing and swearing. The witness thought he was under the influence of liquor, and he remained there until 5 o'clock, and then went "back into camp," as they called it back of the hospital.

The court then adjourned until this morning. "La Mascotte." Mr. F. E. Samuels, Music Teacher, La Mascotte, 10th and F streets, will hold a public meeting at 8 p. m. on Sunday, June 1, 1884.
